A PRAYER OF FR. LAURENCE

LET US PRAY TO THE LORD,

GLORY TO YOU, O LORD, for letting us live to enjoy the beautiful morning that celebrates the triumphal entry of your Son into Jerusalem. As we add our own hosannas to those of the people who welcomed him, number us among those who hymn you forever. Give us all we need to live in a way that is pleasing to you. Take pity on those whom your own hands fashioned and for love of whom your Son sojourned on this earth. Bring a loving peace and unity to your churches, disturbed by so many divisions and contrary opinions. Grant us all remission of our sins, and, by the prayers of the Theotokos and all your saints, enable us to offer you this morning worship with attention and true devotion.

For you deserve all glory, honor, and worship, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit: now and forever, and unto ages of ages. Amen.

THE LORD IS NEAR

WE ARE ENTERING JERUSALEM WITH THE LORD TODAY. It is Palm Sunday. For everyone except Jesus, this is a climatic event. I say everyone except Jesus because no one else except he understands what will eventually take place. In last Sunday's Gospel lesson we heard the disciples continue to be oblivious to the true nature of our Lord's presence on earth. They will continue to not understand until after the Resurrection.

The Epistle lesson for today is taken from St. Paul's Letter to the Philippians 4:4-9. This is a remarkably beautiful letter on many levels. It is gentle, poetic and generous. Paul has an affection for this community, and this community has been generous and affectionate toward him. On a number of occasions they have sent him assistance when he was in need. He says that he is writing this letter from prison; many think this was when he was imprisoned in Ephesus. Regardless from which prison he was writing, the important point is that St. Paul doesn't offer advice out of intellectual speculation. He speaks from the experience of suffering, and this gives his words power.

Listen to what he writes from prison: "Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, Rejoice. Let your gentleness be known to everyone. The Lord is near. Do not worry about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God" (v. 5-6).

In this one sentence he twice tells the Philippians to "Rejoice." He is suffering and the Philippians are themselves suffering, but he nonetheless tells them to rejoice. I heard someone say that the difference between happiness and joy is that happiness means doing what you want, and joy is doing what God wants. Everyone around us (and, this everyone includes ourselves), is searching for happiness by fulfilling our own desires. We are living through a time when we are able to see what the "happiness" that fulfilling our desires produces. Many of us are suffering because of it, while others continue to profit on the suffering of others. It is not a pretty sight. Moreover, no one seems very happy. That we are living to see this terrible principle at work is in one sense a gift from God. If we take the lesson offered, it will be for our salvation.

What God wants for us is what we want for ourselves in the middle of the night, when we wake up in a cold sweat and regret every evil thing that we've ever done. When we realize our weaknesses and beg God to help us, and then get a glimpse of our true selves. What God wants for us is joy, a joy based not in material things that pass away, but grounded in the very depths of our being, body and soul.

After telling them to "rejoice," St. Paul tells them to: "Let [their] gentleness be known to everyone" (v. 5). This one word "gentleness" is translated as "good sense" (in the Jerusalem Bible), and also "forbearance" (in the Revised Standard and King James versions). Translation can be a tricky business, and while each of these meanings can work well here, we can see even in this small example how much depends on the spiritual insight of the translator.

St. John of the Ladder writes that the antidote to the sin of anger is gentleness. From what we know of the Philippian community, they were guided by good sense, they practiced forbearance, and so St. Paul tells them to let people see how good and gentle they were, as encouragement and inspiration for others; to show others how to quell the fires of anger through gentleness.

The next verse is possibly why this reading was chosen for today. St. Paul bolsters the Philippians by reminding them: "The Lord is near" (v. 5). He surely was referring to his eager hope that the Lord would be returning very soon, but there is another sense to his phrase that we pick up in verse 6: "Do not worry about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God." God is near to us when we pray. God hears and knows our thoughts and needs even before we ask.

God is also near to us in a particular way today, as he enters Jerusalem. We share the joy of seeing him, even as we contemplate the pain he will endure in the coming days. But, through his suffering he will draw nearer to us still.

If we pray and trust, St. Paul says, "the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus" (v. 7). One of the great mysteries of the Life in Christ is how God gives us the ability to reconcile and make coherent the joys as well as the tribulations of this life. The world looks for logic. By taking up our cross and following Christ we find the understanding that surpasses logic. We find God's peace.

"Finally, beloved, whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is pleasing, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence and if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things. Keep on doing the things that you have learned and received and heard and seen in me, and the God of peace will be with you" (v. 8-9).

It is when we do what is right and good that we find God. It is when we do what God asks of us, that we find ourselves. Resist the temptation to over-analyze. It keeps you from doing what you're supposed to do.

During the coming week we will see the Lord do "what he's supposed to do." He will say many things, but as the time for "doing" draws closer, he will say less and less. Instead, he allows his actions to speak. We should take our lesson from him, and do likewise.

HOLY WEEK & PASCHA SCHEDULE

As Orthodox Christians, one of the ways we set ourselves apart from the secular world is by placing a high priority on attending as much of the full cycle of Holy Week services as we are able. By participating in the services that commemorate our Lord's passion and death on the Holy Cross, we can more fully experience the joy of the Paschal celebration.

Pascha. Holy Communion is only offered within the context of a Divine Liturgy. Confessions will be heard after Vespers at 5:00 on Lazarus Saturday, April 4th and before and after the Holy Week Services up until Great Tuesday. There will be no Confession in the hours before the Resurrection Service. If you have any questions or wish to arrange a special time, please call Fr. Nick at 508-845-0088.

Dinner following the Divine Liturgy on Sunday, April 5, 2015. A traditional baked fish dinner will be served. An alternative Lenten non-fish menu for children and others will also be offered. Donations for the Luncheon are $25.00 for adults and $5.00 for children. Thanks to the generosity of two families from our parish, all proceeds from the dinner will benefit St. Nicholas Church. Reservations may be made at church, by email (info@StNicholasChurch.org) or by calling the church phone (508-845-0088) and leaving a message.

❖ Confession and Communion: The Faithful should prepare themselves for Confession and Holy Communion, and everyone should try to receive Holy Communion on

❖ Palm Sunday Dinner: Please join us for our annual Palm Sunday

❖ Agape Meal: Preteasa Maria (mzm@net1plus.com) is organizing the Agape meal after the Resurrection Service. Please speak with her in regard to what food items are needed or consider a donation to help cover the cost of the paper goods and other needed items.

❖ Easter Eggs: We are asking for a donation of cooked and dyed red eggs from each family. The eggs should be at the Church by Holy Thursday evening if possible (Tradition has it that the eggs are cooked on Holy Thursday.) Please see Preteasa Maria if you can help wrapping the eggs for distribution on Pascha.

❖ Bay Leaves: Help is needed to remove leaves from their stems in preparation for use on Holy Saturday. This is a task that can be done at home at your leisure. Please see Tim Rucho if you can help.

Paschal Agape Vespers on Easter Sunday: We have the tradition of reading the Gospel message in many different languages. If you are able to read the Gospel in a particular language and would like to participate, please speak with Fr. Nick or Tim early in Holy Week.
